

2010 Angeline Russian River Valley Sauvignon Blanc

88 POINTS

“A beautiful wine, sharp and clean in acidity and savory, with ripe lemon, lime and pineapple and grapefruit citrus flavors. Finishes dry and honeyed, a paradox.”

– S.H., Wine Enthusiast Magazine, October 2011 issue

2009 Angeline Russian River Valley Sauvignon Blanc

88 POINTS, EDITOR'S CHOICE

“If there’s any oak on this wine, it doesn’t show. What does show up is crisply clean acidity and brilliantly ripe pineapple, lime and honeysuckle flavors, brightened with crisp acidity. It’s a lovely cocktail sipper, and nice with bruschetta and olive or mushroom tapenade.”

– S.H., Wine Enthusiast, September 2010 issue

2009 Angeline Russian River Valley Sauvignon Blanc

85 POINTS

“Pleasant and softly juicy, featuring green papaya, melon and lime peel flavors that show modest depth but are nicely refreshing on the finish.”

– M.W., Wine Spectator, Aug. 31, 2010 issue

ANGELINE 2008 SAUVIGNON
BLANC RUSSIAN RIVER VALLEY; $15
Angeline is one of the best second labels in California,
in this case from Martin Ray.

This '08 Sauvignon smacks of ripe,
tangy Asian pear, gooseberry, fig, green melon, vanilla and spice flavors brightened by wonderfully crisp acidity.
Just beautiful, and a nice bargain at this price—S.H.
