2005 Angeline Sonoma County Cabernet Sauvignon

“A nose and flavors of dried plum, followed by cherry and cranberry, that almost float across the palate. Accented with a sweet note and laced with light, fine, dry tannin. It finishes long and medium-broad.”

2005 Angeline Sonoma County Cabernet Sauvignon

96 POINTS

“The Angeline 2005 Cabernet Sauvignon is youthful, but very drinkable now. It is a dry, medium-bodied cab with rich fruit flavors and soft tannins, well balanced and very quaffable. A good red wine for serving to a diverse dinner party, and a good value at a suggested retail price of $14.”

2005 Angeline Sonoma County Cabernet Sauvignon

86 POINTS, GOOD VALUE

“Its slightly juicy, ripe-cherry smells and flavors are very much those of Merlot, but this fairly rich wine’s fleshy feel and firming tannins are the structural stuff of Cabernet. Despite a price tag that would seem to imply easy drinking, this one is sufficiently tannic to hold back for a couple of years, and, with that slight caveat noted, it stands as a very good buy.”

2004 Angeline Sonoma County Cabernet Sauvignon

“Rustic, country-style, but ripe in Cabernet fruit, with a rich tannin structure and a long, dry finish. Shows real polish in the upfront blackberry, cherry and currant flavors.”

2004 Angeline Sonoma County Cabernet Sauvignon

“Has a nose with almost liqueur-like density and aromas of chocolate, black cherry, and vanilla before round, thick flavors of chocolate, licorice, black cherry, and vanilla laced with very light tannin. A Cab’ to buy by the case for everyday drinking. Very Tasty.”

85 “Shows plenty of coastal Cabernet character at a fair price. Sure, it’s a bit rough, but the cherry-berry flavors, smooth tannins and kiss of oak will nicely accompany foods calling for a dry, full-bodied red wine.”
